THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT FOR THE
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON AT SEATTLE

In Re:

ADAM R. GROSSMAN,

Debtor.

NO. 10-19817

MOTION TO CONVERT CHAPTER 7
PROCEEDING TO CHAPTER 13

COMES NOW the Debtor herein, Adam Grossman, by and through the Law Offices of Jeffrey B. Wells, who is appearing for the limited purpose of representing Debtor in the present motion to convert and in the Chapter 13 proceeding if the present motion is granted, and moves the Court for entry of an order authorizing the Debtor to convert his Chapter 7 proceeding to one under Chapter 13.

Procedural History

This case began with the Debtor's filing of a Chapter 11 bankruptcy on August 19, 2010. At the time of the Chapter 11 filing the Debtor was involved in a very contentious dissolution proceeding in King County Superior Court. This proceeding unfortunately took up all of Debtor's time and most of his money. As a result, the Chapter 11 did not prosper. The fees paid to Debtor's attorney were subjected to a motion for disgorgement by his now ex-wife. That motion was denied, but a subsequent motion by his now ex-wife to appoint a trustee was filed on

1 October 22, 2010. That motion was granted on December 22, 2010. The Trustee, Ronald 2 Brown, reported that reorganization under Chapter 11 would accomplish little because there was 3 limited equity in the properties. Therefore Mr. Brown moved the Court for conversion to 4 Chapter 7 and the case was converted on March 11, 2011, over Debtor's objection.

5 Since the conversion to Chapter 7, the U.S. Trustee's Office, through its attorney Martin
6 Smith, has advised Debtor and his Chapter 7 attorney that the U.S. Trustee requests that Debtor
7 sign a waiver of his Chapter 7 discharge. The Debtor believes a waiver is not necessary because 8 if he is allowed to convert to a Chapter 13 proceeding, he would propose a 100% Chapter 13
9 repayment plan.

10 The U.S. Trustee's Office has also indicated that before any conversion to Chapter 13, the 11 Debtor must complete his Chapter 7 post-conversion schedules and must complete his 341
12 hearing in addition to waiving a Chapter 7 discharge. Debtor understands and consents to these 13 prerequisites.

14 This Court Has Authority to Grant Debtor's Motion to Convert

15 Debtor recognizes that because his case was originally filed as a Chapter 11 and was 16 subsequently converted to a Chapter 7, he does not have the nearly absolute right to convert to 17 Chapter 13 which would otherwise be available under 11 U.S.C. §706(a). However, this Court
18 still has the discretionary power to grant the present motion to convert to Chapter 13 under 11
19 U.S.C. §706(c). That provision, which reads, "The court may not convert a case under this 20 chapter to a case under chapter 12 or 13 of this title unless the debtor requests or consents to such 21 conversion," conveys authority to convert that is separate from 706(a), as long as the Debtor
22 requests or consents to the conversion. Therefore, as the Debtor has requested conversion to 23 Chapter 13 after a motion and a hearing, the Court may grant his motion.

1 Several bankruptcy courts in the Ninth Circuit have held that 11 U.S.C. §706(a) does not
2 bar conversion from Chapter 7 where the Debtor has previously converted from a Chapter 11 or 3 13. Rather, they have read 706(a) in conjunction with 706(c), recognizing that 706(a) provides 4 an almost absolute right to convert where the Debtor's case was not previously converted but that 5 706(c) allowed the Debtor to request a conversion even where the case was previously converted.
6 See e.g. In re Gerald Walker, 77 B.R. 803 (Bankr. Nevada, 1987); In re Johnson, 116 B.R. 224
7 (Bankr. Id., 1990).

8 Allowing a Debtor to reconvert where appropriate is consistent with the policies behind
9 the rehabilitative chapters of the Bankruptcy Code. As noted by the 9th Circuit Bankruptcy 10 Appellate Panel in Croston v. Davis, 313 B.R. 447, 450, "there is a "no-lose" rationale for the 11 right to convert [because] all of the reorganization chapters require that creditors receive at least 12 as much as would be paid in a chapter 7 liquidation." Therefore, although 706(a) implies that 13 Congress was unwilling to allow debtors more than one guaranteed opportunity to unilaterally 14 convert their case, debtors may still convert even after a prior conversion under 706(c) because 15 "the decision whether to convert is left in the sound discretion of the court, based on what will 16 most inure to the benefit of all parties in interest." In re Johnson, id at 226, quoting House
17 Report No. 595, 95th Cong., 1st Sess. 380 (1977).

18 Debtor is Qualified for Chapter 13

19 Debtor previously filed a motion to convert his case to a Chapter 13 proceeding
20 contemporaneously with the Chapter 11 Trustee's motion to convert the case to Chapter 7. In his 21 objection to Debtor's motion, the Trustee indicated that he did not believe Debtor was eligible
22 for Chapter 13 due to the amount of his secured debts.

23 As set forth on the accompanying declaration, despite these objections, Debtor believes
24 he is qualified to be a Chapter 13 debtor based on the size of his secured and unsecured debts.

1 On his original schedules Debtor incorrectly listed a loan on real property at 6821 39th Avenue
2 NE as a secured debt. He has since discovered through the course of his dissolution proceedings
3 that he was never obligated on that loan; rather, his ex-wife was the sole obligor. For that reason
4 he amended his schedules to correctly reflect his secured obligations at the time of filing. See 2nd
5 amended schedules filed March 3, 2011.

6 Debtor also corrected his schedules to show that the $300,000 which was erroneously
7 listed as a secured debt owed to Bugni Law Firm is in fact a debt in the amount of $225,000 and 8 that it was never owed to Bugni Law Firm. Rather, the note holder is Lyman Opie. He has also 9 changed the $16,000 debt originally listed on Schedule D as owed to Beth Shalom Preschool.
10 That debt is not secured and therefore was removed on the amended schedule D.

11 The trustee also claimed in his objection to conversion to Chapter 13 that Debtor's 12 schedules are inaccurate because the listed amounts do not correspond to the higher amounts on 13 the deeds of trust. The discrepancy is not a result of an inaccurate schedule, but rather because 14 not all principal was borrowed and accumulated interest was not included in the reported debt
15 owed as of the date of filing.

16 Based on the foregoing, Debtor believes that he was eligible to be a Chapter 13 debtor on 17 the date he originally filed his case, and that this still holds true as he remains well within the 18 allowable secured and unsecured debt limits of Chapter 13.

19 In determining whether a debtor qualifies for Chapter 13 under the jurisdictional limits of 20 109(e), courts look to the Debtor's financial situation as of "the date of filing." 11 U.S.C. 109(e).
21 Only if bad faith is indicated do they look beyond the face of the schedules. "Section 109(e)
22 requires no more than a 'realistic' assessment of the debtor's 'state of affairs as it reasonably 23 appeared on the date of filing.'" In re Piszczek, 269 B.R. 641, 643 (Bankr. E.D. Michigan, 2001), 24 quoting In re Pearson, 773 F.2d 751, 758 (6th Cir. 1985).

1 Courts interpreting this issue “have narrowly construed . . . § 109(e) [to] hold that a
2 bankruptcy court cannot look to post-petition events to determine the amount of the debt.” In re
3 Slack, 187 F.3d 1070, 1073 (9th Cir. 1999). Therefore, Debtor qualifies for a Chapter 13
4 bankruptcy based upon the amounts of his secured and unsecured debts at the time of the filing
5 his original petition which, as set forth on the amended Schedule F and 2nd amended Schedule D
6 on file with the court, were less than the jurisdictional limits under 109(e). The date of filing is 7 the relevant factor even where the Debtor has previously converted his case. 11 U.S.C. §348(a) 8 states that “conversion of a case from a case under one chapter of this title to a case under 9 another chapter of this title constitutes an order for relief under the chapter to which the case is 10 converted, but, except as provided in subsections (b) and (c) of this section, does not effect a 11 change in the date of the filing of the petition, the commencement of the case, or the order for 12 relief” [emphasis added].

13 Conversion is in Best Interest of Debtor’s Creditors

14 As set forth on the accompanying declaration, Debtor believes his experience, education,
15 and job situation will assist him in maximizing the funds available to creditors through a 16 liquidation and plan payments. Therefore, he believes conversion to Chapter 13 is warranted as 17 it provides the best option for his creditors.

18 In addition to Debtor’s liquidation efforts, he brings the present motion with the intention
19 of proposing a one hundred percent Chapter 13 repayment plan. Under the proposed plan Debtor
20 would make monthly Chapter 13 payments of $3,624 based upon his net income of $6,425 from 21 GPI Holdings and $1,704 from Keywest per month. Monthly payments of $2,999 will pay his 22 unsecured debt in full within 48 months.

23 Debtor’s Chapter 11 filing was very difficult and came at a time when he did not have the 24 resources or time necessary to make it successful. He was involved in a very contentious divorce
25

1 and was self employed. That period is now behind Debtor as he is now single and employed by 2 GPI Holdings. Debtor is now able to reorganize based on his income and expertise such that he 3 expects to be able to afford to pay a 100% dividend through a Chapter 13 plan.

4 Conclusion

5 Based on the foregoing, Debtor respectfully requests that the Court grant his motion and 6 authorize him to convert his proceeding to a Chapter 13 case.

In Re:

ADAM R. GROSSMAN,

Debtor.

NO. 10-19817

DECLARATION OF ADAM GROSSMAN

I am the Debtor herein.

The U.S. Trustee's Office, through its attorney Martin Smith, has advised me and my attorney that he would ask that I sign a waiver of my Chapter 7 discharge. If this request has been made because I do not pass the means test for Chapter 7, into which I have been involuntarily converted, the mistake of my involuntary conversion into Chapter 7 should be corrected. If this request has been made because of any actions I have undertaken which are believed to be improper, I was not aware that any of my actions in the Chapter 11 proceedings were considered improper at the time I undertook them. In fact, while testifying in court under oath in December during my divorce trial, I was specifically asked if I had a court order to purchase property and, to the great surprise of opposing counsel during cross examination, I read from the court order the exact passage which permitted such transactions.

1 Nevertheless, I now find myself in the position of having my assets involuntarily and 2 inefficiently liquidated by the Chapter 7 trustee at a tremendous loss of value, while being asked to 3 waive my right to a discharge, which is the only advantage I see as an outcome of a Chapter 7
4 liquidation. My creditors find themselves in the position of receiving only fractional repayment of 5 debt without full repayment.

6
7 For these reasons, I am bringing the present motion to convert my case to a Chapter 13
8 proceeding with the proposal of a 100% Chapter 13 repayment plan.

9 I have been a real estate investor for over 20 years and have a degree from MIT and an MBA
10 from the Wharton School of Business which give me the experience and knowledge to effectively
11 manage my real estate assets. My family has been in the real estate business for even longer, and my 12 late father was both a real estate attorney and real estate broker for decades in the area where I own
13 real estate and focus my investment activity. Immediately prior to being served with divorce papers
14 and for a short while afterwards, I had spent considerable time and planning to significantly scale
15 my holdings of real estate in the Shasta County region through capital fundraising and the launch of 16 a second asset management fund. My first asset management fund overall yielded a positive return 17 to investors during a period when the market declined substantially. During the Financial Crisis of 18 2008, my fund actually returned approximately 10% for the year. The following distinction is very 19 important to understand about me: investment activity has been very profitable, but divorce activity 20 has been very costly.

21
22 I believe that through my management and my recently acquired employment with GPI 23 Holdings, from which I earn a gross monthly salary of $7,000 ($6,000 plus an estimated $1,000 in 24

1 overtime, bonuses, or other consulting), I will be able to repay all of my creditors in full through a
2 Chapter 13 plan.

3 Through my employment at GPI Holdings I am able to realize more money in the 4 management and disposition of real estate than can be realized by the Chapter 7 trustee. Specifically,
5 GPI Holdings is able to offer financing for buyers who may have difficulty in obtaining bank loans
6 in this much stricter regulatory climate. As a result I can sell property quicker and at higher prices
7 than through the traditional system of buyers obtaining bank financing and the use of real estate
8 brokers.

10 Because GPI Holdings buys and sells and holds property on its own behalf, it does not require 11 the use of a broker and the attendant commissions because a licensed broker is not required when 12 a principal is transacting on its own behalf.

13 Set forth in Exhibit A, attached, is a spreadsheet of my real estate showing the expected
14 realization to creditors under a liquidation by the Chapter 7 trustee. By contrast, I am proposing a 15 100% Chapter 13 repayment plan.

17 In addition to the liquidation of real estate, I propose to pay to my creditors in a Chapter 13
18 plan monthly payments of $3,624 based upon net income of $6,425 from GPI Holdings (as described 19 above) and payments of $1,704 from Keywest Financial LLC. Monthly payments of $2,999 will pay 20 my unsecured debt in full within 48 months.

21 The Chapter 11 filing was very difficult for me. I was involved in a very contentious divorce
22 and was self employed. I was advised that it would be very difficult for me to conduct business as 23 a self-employed person during the divorce proceedings -- advice which was very prescient. That 24

1 period is now behind me. I am now single and am employed by GPI Holdings.

2 I believe I qualify to be a Chapter 13 debtor despite the objections to the contrary previously
3 raised by the Chapter 11 trustee. On my original schedules I incorrectly listed a loan on real property
4 at 6821 39th Avenue NE as one of my secured debts. Through the course of my dissolution
5 proceedings it was shown that I was never obligated on that loan; rather, my ex-wife was the sole
6 obligator. I was never listed as a co-owner of the property. I was not on the deed Moreover, I had 7 signed a quit-claim deed in 2007 for the purpose of allowing my (then) wife to refinance her
8 property. For that reason I amended my schedules to correctly reflect my secured obligations at the 9 time I filed my petition. See 2nd amended schedules filed March 3, 2011.

11 I also corrected my schedules to show that the $300,000 which was erroneously listed as a
12 secured debt due to a clerical error owed to Bugni Law Firm is in fact a debt in the amount of 13 $225,000 and that it was never owed to Bugni Law Firm. Rather, the note holder is Lyman Opie. I
14 have also changed the $16,000 debt originally listed on Schedule D as owed to Beth Shalom. That 15 debt is not secured and therefore was removed on my amended schedules as a secured debt.

17 The Chapter 11 Trustee also claimed in his objection that my debt schedules are inaccurate
18 because the listed amounts do not correspond to the higher amounts on the deeds of trust. The 19 discrepancy is not because my 2nd amended Schedule D is inaccurate, but rather because not all 20 principal was borrowed and accumulated interest was not included in the reported debt owed as of 21 the date of filing. This is similar to any HELOC in which the amount of principal and interest may 22 go up and down. In fact, in several instances I did borrow additional money confirming the HELOC-23 nature of the listed amount.

1 Based on the foregoing, I believe that I was eligible to be a Chapter 13 debtor on August 19,
2 2010, the date I originally filed my case, and that I still am as I remain well within the allowable
3 secured and unsecured debt limits of Chapter 13.

4 I understand from my attorney that the U.S. Trustee would not necessarily oppose my 5 conversion to Chapter 13 so long as I complete my post-petition Chapter 7 schedules, complete my 6 341 hearing in Chapter 7, and sign a waiver of Chapter 7 discharge. Such a waiver is not necessary
7 as I am proposing a 100% Chapter 13 repayment plan. I understand that the Chapter 7 trustee will 8 have an administrative claim in the Chapter 13 proceeding.
9

10 In addition and based upon the stance taken by the US Trustee's office, I really have no
11 choice but to repay my creditors through a Chapter 13 plan. Luckily, my income is such that I can 12 afford to pay my unsecured creditors a 100% dividend. Thus, a Chapter 13 will result in a more 13 beneficial outcome for my creditors, who otherwise face the likely prospect of receiving only a 14 fraction of the money owed to them through a liquidation.
15

16 For the foregoing reasons, I respectfully request conversion of my case to a Chapter 13
17 proceeding.

18 I hereby declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of Washington that the 19 foregoing statements are true and correct to the best of my information and belief.

20 Dated this 18th day of May, 2011.
